Classification of organisations

The following list is designed to help users identify at a glance those areas of activity with which each organisation is concerned. The organisations are listed in the order in which they appear in the handbook, that is, under official and unofficial groupings and the sub-sections within each. For more detailed information readers should refer to the detailed descriptions in the main sections

Functional areas of activity are defined as follows:

Funding agency: grants for development projects (both technical assistance and capital aid); scholarships and awards for education and training; sponsorship schemes

Co-ordination: agencies which draw together and liaise among a group of like organisations

Information exchange: resource centres, audio-visual services; libraries; publications; speaker services; discussion meetings, seminars and conferences

Research: pure and applied

Development assistance: technical advice and expertise; material aid (including emergency relief); overseas voluntary workers

Education and training: exchange of personnel; formal and non-formal education programmes; technical and vocational training courses; youth training programmes; development education

Professional standards: improvement of professional standards; codes of conduct; equivalence of qualifications

Geographical area: area in which each organisation has, by membership or activity, a presence

Headquarters: country in which the organisation is officially based
